

HOMESTEAD STARTS TWO VN CLASSES IN NOVEMBER – NOW IS THE TIME TO JOIN

Homestead Schools, Inc. is starting two new vocational nursing programs in November: one is a part-time weekend program and the other is a full-time evening program. The part-time program is offered on Sat. – Sun. from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and runs 18 months. The evening program is offered during the week from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. and runs for 12 months. If you've been looking to join a VN program then you should grab this opportunity for it's unlikely that the school will offer this schedule again until January, 2010.

The school offers financial aid and federally guaranteed loans to those students who qualify. Each student is evaluated individually and you'll need to come in and talk to the student counselor. Most students qualify for Pell grants – money that does not need to be paid back – and in some situations even the parents qualify for a loan depending upon their financial condition.

Money, or the lack of it, is often the biggest impediment to pursuing a career and make that dramatic life-alternating change. Many students have been turned away in the past because they did not have the personal funds to pay for the tuition or could not qualify for a Sallie Mae student loan. Now with the grants and the loans available there's no reason for you to hold back your plans.

Homestead has a few openings in its weekend program starting in November. You should make an appointment with their student counselor, George Dayrit, today and see if you can qualify for the aid and the loans. He can be reached at (310) 791-9975.
